

Have you seen a singing female Oriental Magpie-Robin (Copsychus saularis)?

- Researchers want to study differences in male and female Oriental Magpie-robin songs throughout their range.
- However, female songs are not well documented.
- We are seeking recordings of their songs, especially from Southeast and Pacific Asia.

Female

Male

Females are distinguished from pure black and white males by their grey heads and buffy sides.

If you see a singing female (or male) Magpie-robin, please record their songs and upload them through eBird or xeno-canto.

Add the phrase “Contributed for the female bird song project: femalebirdsong.org” to your notes, so we can find your recording.

If you record a female and singing males are nearby, record some males, too. Recordings of males and females from the same location are especially useful!

Range of
Copsychus saularis

For more information, visit www.femalebirdsong.org